The game is set in a modern Japanese city and revolves around a group of high school students who battle creatures known as Shadows during a mysterious time known as the Dark Hour. Players take on the role of the protagonist, who has the unique ability to summon Personas, manifestations of their inner psyche.

The gameplay involves a mix of traditional RPG elements, including turn-based combat and character progression, intertwined with social simulation aspects. Players must balance their time between battling Shadows in Tartarus, the game's primary dungeon, and building relationships with their peers. This balance is crucial, as developing social links can enhance the protagonist's abilities and unlock powerful Personas.
