Step 1: Decide on the Format

Determine whether you want a multiple-choice format, true or false questions, or open-ended questions. Each format has its advantages. Multiple-choice questions can be easier for participants, while open-ended questions might spark more discussion and creativity.

Make sure to balance the difficulty level of the questions to keep everyone engaged.

Step 3: Set the Rules

Before starting the quiz, outline the rules clearly. Decide how participants will answer the questions, whether they will work individually or in teams, and how scoring will be handled. You can also add a timer for each question to increase excitement and competition.
